ORIGIN OF THE "HAZE."

It Comes from the Great Forest Fires on the Lukes.

The smoky haze that permeated the atmosphere in Wheeling, and in fact all the surrounding country, yesterday was the cause of much comment and conjecture. Telephone messages were re-ceived here from Wellsville and other ceived here from Wellsville and other up river towns asking as to the origin of the fire, it being thought that the fire was raging in this neighborhood. People coming from other directions brought information that the smoke was obscuring objects in every direction. Down at the Moundsville race track it was difficult to see the horses on the back stretch from the grand stand. At the German Pioneer picnic out at Wheeling Park it was thought that a rain storm was coming and the result was a stampede to the various places of shelter. In the afternoon is was rumored that there were forest fires at Dillonvale, over the river, and at Rush Run, near Martin's Ferry, but the rumors were unfounded, the truth of the matter being that the smoke comes from the immense forest fires in Wis-consin and Minnesota, along the shores of Lake Superior.

The death of Charles Price, which occurred yesterday shortly after noon, was most pathetic. The deceased was a man in the early prime of life, and apparently in perfect health. For some time past he was alightly troubled with his head, but nothing was considered serious until he came home from work Monday afternoon, at 2 p. m., almost prostrated. Medical aid was at once summoned, but he steadily became worse until yesterday afternoon, when death resulted from affected medulis and brain forces. He was unconscious at the time of death. Mr. Price was about thirty-eight years of age, and leaves a wife, who is seriously ill from the shock of her husband's sudden death. He was a valued employe of the Wheeling steel works, and had hoets of friends here and elsewhere.
